NEW TENNIS CLUB MAY GET SITE IN PARK

Proposal For Lease Of Ground Will Be Submitted To Council

For the first time for several weeks past there was a full quorum of the Council at the fortnightly meeting on Monday night, sickness and absence from the city having accounted for absentees on previous occasions. The application of Mr. J. Coupland in regard to renewal of his contract for the city scavenging, which had been laid over from last meeting, was given consideration. As the work had been done during the past two years at a low rate but very satisfactorily, it was the general opinion of the Council that no profit should be made from the charges to the public, which produced a surplus last year of $33.36 per month over and above what was paid to Mr. Coupland. It was accordingly resolved that a contract for the work be prepared and awarded to Mr. Coupland, who will receive all the monies collected by the City and in return for the increase will be responsible for the maintenance and repair of the wagons supplied by the City and heretofore kept in repair by the corporation.

A letter was received from Mr. A. L. McLaughlin, of the Dominion Water Power Branch, stating that Mr. George Finlayson, Shuswap Falls, had a live bald-headed eagle which he would be willing to present to the City for its Zoo.

Previous experiences in keeping a menagerie in the Park not having turned out a brilliant success, the offer was declined with thanks.

The International Amusement Co., a travelling concern of the sidishow order claiming to be composed ninety per cent of returned men, enquired as to whether they could obtain a licence to exhibit here.

Having regard to financial conditions and the fact that such shows take a large amount of ready cash out of the town, the Council decided that the best terms that could be given would be a licence fee of $5 per day for each separate attraction included in the show.

Mr. P. Philip, Public Works Engineer, wrote in regard to the work on Mission Creek, stating that it was not deemed advisable to commence any excavation work at present but each of the four gangs formed to work at different points had been authorized to spend the sum of $250 in clearing out stumps and fallen timber where it was decided to excavate channels and build protection works. As soon as the clearing was finished, Mr. W. K. Gwyer, District Engineer, would have the work staked out. He asked for the City's approval, which was accorded.

Hon. E. D. Barrow, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, forwarded for the information of the Council a copy of a letter received from Hon. W. R. Mott, well, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, which stated that, upon receipt of an application from the authorities of any town or city, the Federal Department of Agriculture would undertake the testing for tuberculosis of the dairy herds supplying such municipalities with milk and dairy products.

For the Finance Committee, Ald. Rattenbury reported that $5,000 realized from the assignment of the Dilworth mortgage had been used to the purchase of £1,260 worth of P.G.E. bonds, guaranteed by the Provincial Government, at $84.80 and interest, and $1,000 had thus been gained for the Sinking Fund.

A formal resolution, approving the purchase, was passed.

The Imperial Oil Co. wrote protesting against assessment of their oil tanks here as improvements and claiming that the government had made a ruling that such erections were to be treated as personal property and taxed accordingly. As the amount at stake was not large, the Company intimated that no appeal would be taken this year against the assessment, but they asked that the matter be kept in mind in view of next year's assessment.

For the Water Committee, Ald. Barrow reported that the applications for water connections be granted with the exception of those from residents on Rowell Avenue, the four in the latter case being insufficient to comply with the Council's rule of not more than 200 feet of pipe for each service. As four new houses were being erected on that street, however, he recom-

ELLISON

Mr. Atack came back from Moose Jaw this week, after an absence of several weeks.

Miss I. Latta left on Monday for Vancouver, where she will attend business college.

One of the cakes that were auctioned after the Ellison Hospital dance was purchased by Bill Heron; we are sorry to hear he is now in the Kelowna Hospital, and hope it is nothing serious.

Considering the condition of the roads, we were rather surprised to see the usual number turn up to our fourth social evening last Wednesday, with but few absentees. With fifteen tables in use, we played twenty-three hands, at the end of which Mrs. Nelson headed the ladies' scores with 179 tricks, whilst Mr. George Guest went still higher with 187 tricks, and won the gentleman's prize. It is high time that a lady obtained the largest score, as this is the fourth time that a gentleman has held that position. Refreshments were plentiful as usual, and after a little delay the rhythmic strains soon had the dance fiends on the floor. With "the lanterns dimly burning," and a scanty number of musicians, the general opinion seemed to be that it had not nearly so much pep as usual, but a dingy lit hall invariably gives this impression, especially to onlookers. As for our rapidly increasing supply of dud lamps, the least said soonest mended. The promise of electricity from the prospective new line seems no nearer fulfillment than that of the railway, but still we live in hopes.

From the entrance fee to the whist drive seventeen dollars was collected, which will cut another big slice from the debt on the chairs and only a small amount will remain. There are some few people in the district who criticised the above small fee, and wonder what it was for. Do they imagine that tables, chairs, cards, prizes, coffee and sugar, and lamp fuel, all fall from the skies? We believe that the majority of Ellison people would agree that the United Farmers are to be congratulated on the way they have got people together and kept up the essential social element this winter, and considering that we have enjoyed three socials absolutely free, surely such idle criticism is wholly out of place.

Our next similar affair will not be until April 19th, the third Wednesday of the month, and the usual fortnight after the regular Farmers' meeting, which of course will be the 5th April. The melting snow is rapidly pouring down the hills and 'midst sighs of relief the wintry aspect is slowly but surely departing, although we have an idea that the thermometer is due to go down to zero again about now, but perhaps the prophets are mistaken for once, and with a little luck we may get our domestic water systems open before next winter.

GLENMORE

The Glenmore Ladies' Club met at the home of Mrs. Irving on Tuesday, March 14th. Eleven members were present, who sewed for the hospital. The Committee who had drawn up a programme for the year's meetings presented it and the meeting adopted it. The next meeting will be on April 11th, when we hope to have Mrs. Dow with us as the speaker instead of on March 28th. It has been decided to change the date, because the roads are in a bad condition owing to the thaw. No Sunday evening service was held in the School on Sunday last owing to the bad condition of the roads coupled with a moonless night. It has been considered advisable also to hold no service on Sunday next, as conditions are likely to be very similar. On April 2nd, however, the regular service will be resumed, and we hope will continue without any break. Will all interested in the Glenmore United Service keep this date in mind and be present?

Mr. W. Wallace has been away for some days at Kamloops.

Mr. P. A. Lewis left for Vernon on Wednesday morning.

Signatures on the municipal petition are being signed this week.

Our friends on the gully road are having a bad time with cars, a few having ventured as late as Sunday. The roads at the North end are just getting very soft, and by next week we shall be deeply mired.

Friends will be glad to know that Crofton Wimpenny is making good progress since the amputation of his foot.

SWEET PEA GROWERS HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

Show Will Be Repeated This Year

(Contributed)
A small but enthusiastic meeting of the Amateur Sweet Pea Association was held at the home of Mrs. M. E. Cameron on Thursday last.

Officers for the current year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. Lyons; First Vice-President, Mrs. Grote Stirling; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Binger; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Coubrough; Committee, Mrs. M. E. Cameron, Mrs. Greene and Mrs. Craig. A separate Tea Committee was also elected, consisting of Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Packham and Mrs. G. D. Cameron.

Last year's balance sheet showed an expenditure of $55.30 for prizes and $23.20 for rent, hauling, etc.

The show was originally started as a private competition amongst a few enthusiastic sweet pea growers, and was held at the home of Mrs. Lyons for six years with great success. Last year, owing to a number of requests, it was made a public event, but the result was most disappointing and the number of entries exceedingly small, not warranting the trouble and expense of holding it again at the Aquatic. After considerable discussion at the meeting it was decided to hold it as formerly at the home of Mrs. Lyons in conjunction with a garden party. An entrance fee of 25c will be charged to non-members. Tea will be served at 25c each, the profits to be given to the Hospital and the Girl Guides. A membership fee of $1.00 entitles the holder to enter and exhibit in all classes, also to attend and vote at the meetings. It is hoped that all who are interested will join to support the Association and that they will also exhibit.

Several special prizes have been offered as follows:

For best vase of four stalks, one variety. Presented by Mrs. Binger.

Second prize for best four varieties. Presented by Mrs. Greene. (First prize is a cup.)

Third prize for best four varieties. Presented by Mrs. Cameron.

Consolation prize. Presented by Mrs. Grote Stirling.

Best four stalks, orange. Presented by Mrs. Lyons.

Best single stalk. Presented by Mrs. H. Lyons.

Prizes have also been kindly offered by Mr. Peter Campbell and Messrs. Atlee, Burpee. The Committee will be pleased to receive offers of any other special prizes. A full prize list will be published as soon as completed, and will be sent to all members.

ANNUAL MEETING OF KELOWNA G.W.V.A.

Officers Elected For The Current Year

(Contributed)
The annual meeting of the Kelowna Branch of the G.W.V.A. was held in the Club-rooms on Wednesday evening, the 15th inst. The President, Comrade A. Graves, was in the chair and there were about 50 members present.

The minutes of the last annual meeting having been read and adopted, the President invited the consideration of the financial statement, before he passed on to review the past year's work. While the balance sheet showed the branch as being financially sound, it also emphasized the fact that, owing to loss of revenue from various sources such as grants, etc., and the natural effect on the lantene receipts by the hard times experienced lately, it would mean close economy being practiced in the future, every effort being made to collect dues in arrears and a special effort to increase the membership.

The meeting adopted the financial statement and expressed satisfaction with its preparation and clearness of detail.

In reviewing the work of the past year the President made special mention of the relief work and Christmas cheer undertaken, pointing out that service to others was one of the Association's chief objects. He reminded the members of their obligations and appealed for the fullest co-operation in all undertakings.

Various improvements and additions had been made to the premises, which had enabled the club to more thoroughly take care of social activities and recreation. The large bookcase

LOCAL MILITIA UNIT INSPECTED BY D.O.C.

"D" Company, 172nd Regt., R. M. R., Makes A Creditable Showing

On Friday evening last, the local company of the 172nd Regiment, Rocky Mountain Rangers, was inspected by Brig-Gen. J. M. Ross, C. M. G., District Officer Commanding Military District No. 11. The General, who is on his annual tour of inspection, was accompanied on this occasion by Lt. Col. J. R. Vickers, Officer Commanding the Rangers, and Capt. Spink, C.A.P.C. Gen. Ross was met at the wharf by a Guard of Honour of thirty trained men in charge of Lt. W. Shugg, M.M., with Sergts. Dick, Davis and F. A. Martin, M.M. Although the guard was only composed of one-third veterans, the remainder being made up with recruits of one week's training, the General was agreeably impressed by its smart military appearance and efficiency.

Following the inspection of the Guard of Honour, the General proceeded to the High School and inspected the Cadets.

In the evening a muster parade was held at the Company's headquarters in the old Stirling & Pitcairn packing shed, kindly lent by the Kelowna Packers' Exchange. The Company was formed up in column under the command of the O.C., Major H. B. Abbott, M.C., with Capt. G. D. Cameron, M.C., second-in-command and C.S.-M. Heughan as Sergt.-Major. The platoons were under the following commanders—No. 13 platoon, Lieut. W. Shugg, M.M.; No. 14, Lieut. I. McDougall; No. 15, Lieut. O. St. P. Aitkens, M.C.; No. 16, Lieut. W. W. Pettigrew, M.M.; Base Platoon, Lieut. E. W. Wilkinson.

Out of the Company's complement of 132 all ranks only three men were unaccounted for, to the great satisfaction of the inspecting officer.

On the appearance of the General at headquarters the Company gave the general salute, presented arms and marched past with fixed bayonets, after which No. 13 Platoon was formed up on a separate part of the floor with the object of permitting the officers and N.C.O.'s put it through drill movements with a view to testing their efficiency. However, Mr. Shugg had only put it through a few movements when the General seemed to realize that these officers and N.C.O.'s had left the C.E.F. service more than efficient and contented himself with having a talk with each one individually.

The General, though a man of few words and scanty praise, expressed himself as very pleased at the manner in which the Kelowna Company had fulfilled his ideas in organization, in having a cadre of officers and N.C.O.'s with excellent overseas service and training, and in the ranks men of very good physique, 90 per cent of whom had been too young for overseas service during the war, with the steady influence of a sprinkling of veteran soldiers. The General remarked that he found these conditions to be more and more fulfilled the farther he got away from the Coast.

After inspection, General Ross visited the G.W.V.A. Club and chatted with the men he met there. Later, the General and staff, together with members of the G.W.V.A., accepted the invitation of the Kelowna Club, where a very excellent smoker was put on in their honour. The inspecting officers returned to Vancouver on Saturday morning.

A satisfactory feature of this training of men at local headquarters is the acquisition to Kelowna of a payroll of from $1,200 to $1,500. It is anticipated that most of this money will be kept in the Company funds and used to organize some form of band, to provide necessary finances for sports and towards paying travelling expenses of athletic teams to other towns in the district.

"D" Company is at present fifteen men over strength and recruits are still coming in. Failing orders to the contrary, this policy of maintaining the Company over strength will be continued throughout the year.

was not only a fine piece of furniture but completed the library and he invited the members to take every advantage of this feature. By removing the small room inside the entrance door, and laying a new flooring over the whole of the main floor, a fine hall had been developed and dances and concerts could now be enjoyed in

KAMLOOPS PRESBYTERIAL ASSEMBLES HERE

Annual Meeting Held Of Women's Missionary Society of Presbyterian Church

(Contributed)
The fifth annual meeting of the Kamloops Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society (Presbyterian Church in Canada, Western Division), was held in the United Church, on Wednesday and Thursday, March 15th and 16th. This Presbyterial, extending from Kamloops to Golden on the main C.P.R. line and including all the Okanagan Valley, has 15 Auxiliaries, 12 of which were represented at the gathering.

Three sessions were held on Wednesday and two on Thursday. The greater part of the time was devoted to yearly reports and plans for future improvements. Local talent assisted in making the afternoon and evening sessions more effective, and delightful solos were given by Mrs. Braden, Miss Wilkie and Miss Staples. Stirring addresses were delivered by Mrs. Campbell-Brown, of Oyama, and Mrs. M. D. McKee, of Salmon Arm.

Visiting members included, Miss Sinclair, West Summerland; Mrs. R. Inglis, Armstrong; Mrs. I. Oakley, Kamloops; Mrs. M. D. McKee, Salmon Arm; Mrs. J. B. Fisher, Benvenuto; Mrs. D. B. SCOUTS AUXILIARY GIVES CONCERT

Pleasing Entertainment Draws A Large Crowd

Refreshingly diverse in programme from the usual concert, that given on Thursday night, in the Empress Theatre, by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Kelowna Boy Scouts Association was much enjoyed by an audience that filled most of the seats, and the Concert Committee, Mesdames Meikle, McDonald and Todd, deserve credit for the variety of the entertainment offered. The handsome sum of $344.55 was realized, after payment of all expenses.

The performance opened with a tuneless rendering of the overture from "The Geisha" by the orchestra of the Philharmonic Society, under the leadership of Mr. McCandlish, Mr. Geo. S. McKenzie, arrayed in the kilt, sang "The Bounding Boulder" and responded to the inevitable encore with something more laudersque in "We Parted On The Shore." The flower drill which followed was a very pretty number. Twelve little maidens, clad all in white and carrying garlands of red and yellow roses, went through a wonderful variety of graceful evolutions to music, and the picture they presented so won the hearts of the audience that they had to repeat part of the drill. Mr. F. Wigglesworth entertained with a "Pianologue," which abounded in local allusions that tickled the risibilities of his hearers, and he gave an old English country song as an encore. Miss King showed mastery of her instrument in her violin solo and played a delightful selection as an encore. Sickness of some of those who were to have taken part involved cancellation of a couple of items on the programme, but an interesting substitute was supplied by little Miss Beatrice Campbell, who courageously tackled "Mary of Argyll," an ambitious effort for one so young. Her voice, though naturally lacking in power, was sweet and she was heartily applauded, returning to the stage and curtsying her acknowledgments. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. DeMara caused much amusement by their sketch, "Thunder and Lightning," enacted principally with the stage in semi-darkness and an electric storm intermittently flashing and rumbling. The sketch depicts the tribulations of a woman who is afraid of thunderstorms and puts her husband through all sorts of antics to protect him against a possible shock.

EAST KELOWNA

We haven't been able to collect much news this week as we have been suffering from a bad cold during most of the time. We don't know whether it was a touch of the "flu" or only an ordinary cold caused by sloshing round in wet snow while pruning.

Another victim of a cold is Miss Jones-Evans, to the great grief of the children of the Second Division who are reluctantly compelled to suspend their studies for a day or two.

Mr. Walter Marshall is at the Coast. The Sunday School was again well attended, 40 children and 5 adults.

Archdeacon Greene not being well, the usual monthly Church of England service was not held.

Our knowledge of natural history is not very great. The birds that are doing so much harm to the fruit buds are grossbeaks, not sapsuckers as we stated.

We live in a wonderful age. New inventions are so frequent they have become commonplace; yet this wireless telephone should stir everyone's interest. We wonder who, on the Benches will be the first to purchase a receiving set. We understand they are very moderate in price.

There was a full attendance of Trustees of the S.E.K.I.D. at the meeting on Tuesday. Mr. Reekie was heartily congratulated by the rest of the Trustees in his success at Victoria. Steps were taken to have the domestic water system restored to normal as quickly as possible, yet without too great expense to the ratepayers. Much work was done in connection with obtaining title to the whole of the system. This is work which is very slow and difficult, bristling with legal problems; it is work which is not seen by the public and therefore cannot be appreciated, but so far the Trustees have managed to keep their end up and have safeguarded the ratepayers in the protracted negotiations.

The irrigation tolls were slightly altered by the Board of Investigation. Instead of $3.00 per acre natural flow and $2.50 per acre foot storage with a penalty if not paid in time they are now $3.30 and $2.75, with a reduction to the former amount if paid before December the 16th, really the same thing differently expressed.

On Wednesday Mr. J. E. Reekie went to Vernon as a member of the fruit marketing committee.

RUTLAND

Mrs. G. F. Collins, accompanied by her sister, Miss Hill, left on Tuesday for Calgary.

Mrs. A. Goven, who has been spending the past few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. Vigus, left on Wednesday to join her husband in Winnipeg.

Messrs. W. Ferry and S. Montgomery were down from the Monashee district for a few days, the former returning again on Wednesday.

The regular meeting of the U.F.B.C. was held in the school "dungeon" on Monday evening last, there being an attendance of nearly fifty, with the President, Mr. F. A. Lewis, in the chair. Minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted, after which the correspondence was read. The main business of the evening was the discussion of the first four resolutions suggested by the Water Rights and Property Defence League in their article in the United Farmer of March 1st. The first resolution, regarding the rentals, was passed unanimously, as in fact were all the four resolutions. The whole business seems to show an entire lack of understanding of the local circumstances on the part of the Legislature when drawing up the Water Act, and in the matter of amendments also. "Order-in-Council" government came in for much adverse comment. In the search for new means of raising funds the government seems to have adopted measures that are obviously unjust and even in some ways ridiculous. In the antedating of rentals back to 1910 and thereabouts one wonders why they did not date them back to the landing of Columbus and thereby obtain a really substantial sum in arrears!

The suggestion to hold a social evening was acted upon and a committee was formed to arrange for a social on Tuesday, March 28th, in the basement of the school. It will be in the nature of a "stag party."

Mrs. D. R. Butt and child took passage yesterday for England, where they will spend some time. They will sail from St. John, N. B., on March 31st, by the "Mincedosa."

DELEGATE REPORTS ON MISSION TO OTTAWA

Board Of Trade Hears Mayor Sutherland On Results Achieved

Due to the interest taken in the anti-dumping question, there was a slightly larger attendance than usual at the monthly meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday night, although the fruit shipping members were nearly all out of town in attendance at a meeting of their own organization, the B.C. Traffic and Credit Association, at Vernon. President Adams was in the chair.

Applications having been received from Messrs. L. Holman, C. B. Latta, W. R. Foster and H. V. Craig, these gentlemen were duly elected members of the Board.

The President intimated that Mr. Grote Stirling, chairman of the Roads and Transportation Committee, who was unable to be present, had been unable to obtain any additional information in regard to the matters of roads and the level of Okanagan Lake. No work had been carried out on Mission Creek as yet, owing to the obstacles presented by so much snow and ice.

A telegram was read from Mr. W. E. Payne, Secretary of the Associated Boards of Trade of B.C., asking for the names of delegates to the forthcoming annual convention of that body and for information as to the subjects of resolutions to be submitted by Kelowna.

President Adams said the telegram was the first intimation he had received of the convention.

Mayor Sutherland stated that a notice had come addressed to him in his absence at Ottawa.

Mr. Adams said he understood that the convention would meet at Victoria on March 29th. When it was held at Vancouver, it had always been possible to obtain the services of some of the members as delegates, and he invited any who might be in Victoria towards the end of the month to state whether they would be willing to act. No reply being forthcoming, it was moved by Messrs. Sutherland and Haug, and carried, that the Executive Council take steps to secure representation at the convention at Victoria.

Mr. Rees suggested that any individual member might bring to the notice of the Executive any matter that should be submitted to the Convention, but he pointed out, at the same time, that any affairs dealt with must be of provincial scope; it was useless to bring up local issues.

The Penticton Board of Trade forwarded for endorsement and support at the convention of the Associated Boards a resolution opposing elimination of the "jobbing trades lists," as proposed by the railway companies, which would entail abolition of the privilege now enjoyed by jobbers in small markets of shipping mixed carloads at carload rates. It was pointed out by the Penticton Board that such action would inevitably result in centralizing all wholesale houses in the large centres and would render it impossible for the jobber to continue in business in the smaller distributing points, no matter how well situated for distributing purposes, thus tending to increase the cost of living in country districts. The Board was also asked to assist in opposing the change before the Classification Committee of the Railway Commission on its next western trip, which will be some time this spring.

On motion of Messrs. Rees and Norris, the matter was referred to the Executive Council for enquiry, when, if the circumstances warrant, the delegates to the Victoria convention will be instructed to support the resolution, and it will also be forwarded to the convention of the B.C. Traffic and Credit Association, at Vernon.

A request from the Edgewood Local U.F.B.C., for support in securing completion of the road linking Edgewood, on Arrow Lake, with the Okanagan, had already been dealt with by the Executive Council, who had endorsed it and made recommendation accordingly to the Minister of Public Works at Victoria.

A lengthy letter from the Vancouver Publicity Bureau was received in support of an accompanying resolution, asking the Lieut.-Governor-in-Council to proclaim the week of April 10-15 as "B.C. Invitation Week," during which the people of this Province will be asked to invite their friends and acquaintances to visit B.C. and see its many attractions for a holiday or a home.

Troop First! Self Last!

Edited by "Pioneer"

21st March, 1922.
Orders by Command for week ending 30th March, 1922:

Duties: Orderly Patrol for week, Cougars; next for duty, Beavers.

Parades: The combined Troop will parade at Wesley Hall on Monday, the 27th instant, at 7.15 p.m. The Cubs will parade at the same place and time on Thursday, the 30th instant. The Band will parade as usual.

We are very glad that we have been able to make arrangements for the renting of Wesley Hall as our temporary meeting place pending the erection of our own Building. The Cubs will use the Hall on Thursday evenings, the Girl Guides on Wednesdays and the Troop on Mondays.

A well attended business session of the Court of Honour was held on Monday evening, at which the form and nature of our annual entertainment for this year was discussed. It would be much better if at all Courts of Honour every member would take a more active and intelligent part in the deliberations. There were eighteen present on Monday and the great majority said not one word. Such silence is commendable when on parade, although not then always noticeable, but a Court of Honour and particularly a business session provides the "Hyde Park" for all its members.

We gathered that about all but two members were all for abolishing the usual form of entertainment which we have given for the past eight years in favour of a dance, as they argued that the public are "fed-up" with them. We are very grateful for any frank criticism from any member of the public at any time, or any suggestion which may assist us in deciding the nature of our appearance before them this year. It is altogether likely that as soon after the completion of our Building as we can, we shall put on some exhibition there, such as is usually given on a gymnasium floor, assisted by our Bugle Band, and all other instrumental numbers we can secure from Scouts or Cubs themselves. So far we have thought of tumbling, rope climbing, blindfold boxing in group, as something new. We have had tumbling before on a small stage but with the added space should be able to do something much better. We repeat, therefore, that we shall appreciate very much any suggestions from any of our friends as to other items we might put on. Lovers of music (?) will probably regret that we are not likely to make any attempt with Troop Songs this year!

Readers of the Daily Province will have been reading all about the radio phones and how the words spoken and the music in Vancouver have been carried to such far distant points as Eastern Alberta, and as to how they were picked up in our two neighbouring towns of Vernon and Penticton. Mr. George Dunn, of Kelowna, will shortly have his wireless apparatus in working order, which will enable Kelowna to take in this long distance conversation and music too, and P.L.S. Cunningham and Aitken hope to be not far behind him as well. They have both applied for permission to operate radio stations and are to be congratulated on being the pioneers of the Troop to go in for wireless. More should follow. Perhaps we shall be able to set up a receiving station in our own building, and next time we go to the railroad we shall be able to tell those in town how we are, etc.

The Troop will take its annual Easter hike on the Saturday of the Easter holidays, most likely up Bear Creek, but we have not yet finally decided upon the point to be visited. The Scouts wish to express their very sincere thanks to the ladies of the Auxiliary, the artists and others who assisted with the concert last week, the proceeds of which are to go towards the Building Fund.

"DOUG" MACLEAN IN ONE OF BEST ROLES

Popular Young Star Appears Here This Week In "The Home Stretch"

"The Home Stretch," Douglas MacLean's latest Paramount-Ince starring vehicle, is announced as the feature attraction at the Empress Theatre for Friday and Saturday.

With the story hinging on the gambling proclivities of a young horse owner and his difficulties in freeing himself from the influence of the Goddess of Chance, "The Home Stretch" is said to afford MacLean one of the most entertaining roles of his popular career. Not only is the production rich in comedy, but it contains many gripping dramatic situations and thrilling racing scenes, as well. Particularly notable are the scenes of a spectacular handicap staged on one of America's largest metropolitan tracks.

Beatrice Burnham, Margaret Livingston, Wade Boelter Charles Mailes and others equally well known afford Mr. MacLean excellent support.

THE ETHICS OF PIG

By
O. HENRY

Copyright, 1920, by Doubleday, Page & Co. Published by special arrangement with the Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

On an east-bound train I went into the smoker and found Jefferson Peters, the only man with a brain west of the Wabash River who can use his cerebrum, cerebellum, and medulla oblongata at the same time.

Jeff is in the line of unillegals, graft, orphans; he is a reducer of surplusage. His favourite disguise is that of a target-bird at which the spendthrift or the reckless investor may shy a few inconsequential dollars. He is readily vocalized by tobacco; so, with the aid of two thick and easy-burning brevas, I got the story of his latest Autolycan adventure.

"In my line of business," said Jeff, "the hardest thing is to find an upright, trustworthy, strictly honourable partner to work a graft with. Some of the best men I ever worked with in a swindle would resort to trickery at times."

"So, last summer, I thinks I will go over into this section of the country where I hear the serpent has not yet entered, and see if I can find a partner, naturally gifted with a talent for crime, but not yet contaminated by success."

"I found a village that seemed to show the right kind of a layout. The inhabitants hadn't found out that Adam had been dispossessed, and were going right along naming the animals and killing snakes just as if they were in the Garden of Eden. They call this town Mount Nebo, and it's up near the spot where Kentucky and West Virginia and north Carolina corner together. Them states don't meet? Well, I was in that neighbourhood, anyway."

"After putting in a week proving that I wasn't a revenue officer, I went over to the store where the rude four-flushers of the hamlet tied, to see if I could get a line on the kind of man I wanted."

"Gentlemen," says I, after we had rubbed noses and gathered 'round the dried-apple barrel. 'I don't suppose there's another community in the whole world into which 'sin and chicanery has less extensively permeated than this. Life here, where all the women are brave and propitious and all the men honest and expedient, must, indeed, be an idol. It reminds me,' says I, 'of Goldstein's beautiful ballad entitled "The Deserted Village," which says:

"I'll fare the land, to hastening ill a prey;
What art can drive its charms away?
The judge rode slowly down the lane,
mother."

For I'm to be Queen of the May."
"Why, yes, Mr. Peters," says the storekeeper. 'I reckon we air about as moral and torpid a community as there be on the mounting, according to censuses of opinion; but I reckon you ain't ever met Rufe Tatum.'

"Why, no," says the town constable, 'he can't hardly have ever. That air Rufe is shore the monstrousest scallawag that has escaped hanging on the galluses. And that puts me in mind that I ought to have turned Rufe out of the lockup day before yesterday. The thirty days he got for killin' Yance Goodloe was up then. A day or two more won't hurt Rufe any, though."

"Shucks, now," says I, in the mountain idiom, 'don't tell me there's a man in Mount Nebo as bad as that.'

"Worse," says the storekeeper. 'He steals hogs.'

"I think I will look up this Mr. Tatum; so a day or two after the constable turned him out I got acquainted with him and invited him out on the edge of town to sit on a log and talk business."

"What I wanted was a partner with a natural rural make-up to play a part in some little one-act outrages that I was going to book with the Pitfall & Gin circuit in some of the Western towns; and this R. Tatum was born for the role as sure as nature cast Fairbanks for the stuff that kept Eliza from sinking into the river."

"He was about the size of a first baseman; and he had ambiguous blue eyes like the china dog on the mantelpiece that Aunt Harriet used to play with when she was a child. His hair waved a little bit like the statue of the dinkus-thrower in the 'Vacation of Rome, but the colour of it reminded you of the 'Sunset in the Grand Canon, by an American Artist,' that they hang over the stove-pipe holes in the saloons. He was the Reub without needing a touch. You'd have known him for one, even if you'd seen him on the vaudeville stage with some cotton suspender and a straw over his ear. "I told him what I wanted, and found him ready to jump at the job."

"Overlooking such a trivial little peccadillo as the habit of manslaughter," says I, 'what have you accomplished in the way of indirect brigandage or non-actionable thieftiness that you could point to with or without pride, as an evidence of your qualifications for the position?'

"Why," says he, in his kind of Southern system of procrastinated accents, 'haint you heard tell? There ain't any man, black or white, in the Blue Ridge that can toat off a shoat as easy as I can without bein' heard, seen, or cotched. I can lift a shoat, he goes on, 'out of a pen, from under a porch, at the trough, in the woods, day or night, anywhere or anyhow, and I guarantee nobody won't hear a squeal. It's all in the way you grab hold of 'em and carry 'em afterwards. Some'day,' goes on this gentle despoiler of pig-pens, 'I hope to become reckernized as the champion shoat-stealer of the world.'

"It's proper to be ambitious," says I; 'and hog-stealing will do very well for Mount Nebo; but in the outside world, Mr. Tatum, it would be considered as crude a piece of business as a bear raid on Bay State Gas. However, it will be a guarantee of good faith. We'll go into partnership. I've got a thousand dollars cash capital; and with that homeward-plods atmosphere of yours we ought to be able to win out a few shares of Soon Parted, preferred, in the money market.'

"So I attaches Rufe, and we go away from Mount Nebo down into the lowlands. And all the way I coach him for his part in the grafts I had in mind. I had idled away two months on the Florida coast, and was feeling all to the Ponce de Leon, besides having so many new schemes up my sleeve that I had to wear kimono's to hold 'em."

"I intended to assume a funnel shape and mow a path nine miles wide through the farming belt of the Middle West; so we headed in that direction. But when we got as far as Lexington we found Binkley Brothers circus there, and the blue-grass peasantry romping into town and pounding the Belgian blocks with their hand-pegged sabots as artless and arbitrary as an extra session of a Datto Bryan duma. I never pass a circus without pulling the valve-cord and coming down for a little Key West money; so I engaged a couple of rooms and board for Rufe and me at a house near the circus grounds run by a widow lady named Peevy. Then I took Rufe to a clothing store and gent's-outfitted him. He showed up strong, as I knew he would, after he was rigged up in the ready-made rutabaga regalia. Me and old Misfisky stuffed him into a bright blue suit with a Nile green visible plaid effect, and riveted on a fancy vest of a light Tuskegee Normal tan colour, a red necktie, and the yellowest pair of shoes in town."

They were the first clothes Rufe had ever worn except the gingham layette and the butternut trespoding of his native kraal, and he looked as self-conscious as an Igorrote with a new nose-ring.

"That night I went down to the circus tents and opened a small shell game. Rufe was to be the cappei. I gave him a roll of phony currency to bet with and kept a bunch of it in a special pocket to pay his winnings out of. No; I didn't mistrust him; but I simply can't manipulate the ball to lose when I see real money bet. My fingers go on a strike every time I try it."

"I set up my little table and began to show them how easy it was to guess which shell the little pea was under. The unlettered hinds gathered in a thick semi-circle and began to nudge elbows and banter one another to bet. Then was when Rufe ought to have single-footed up and called the turn on my little joker for a few tens and fives to get them started. But, no Rufe, I'd seen him two or three times walking about and looking at the side-show pictures with his mouth full of peanut candy; but he never came nigh."

"The crowd piked a little; but trying to work the shells without a cappei is like fishing without bait. I closed the game with only forty-two dollars of the unearned increment while I had been counting on yanking the yemen for two hundred at least. I went home at eleven and went to

Five Thousand Dollars Reward

The above amount will be paid, and no questions asked, for the return, alive and uninjured, of Beppo, the famous European educated pig, that strayed or was stolen from the side-show tents of Binkley Bros.' circus last night.

Geo. B. Tapley, Business Manager, At the circus grounds, "I folded up the paper flat, put it into my inside pocket, and went to Rufe's room. He was nearly dressed, and was feeding the pig the rest of the milk and some apple-peelings.

"Well, well, well, good morning all," I says, hearty and amiable. "So we are up? And piggy is having his breakfast. What had you intended doing with the pig, Rufe?"

"I'm going to crate him up," says Rufe, and express him to ma in Mount Nebo. He'll be company for her while I am away."

"He's a mighty fine pig," says I, scratching him on the back.

"You called him a lot of names last night," says Rufe.

"Oh, well," says I, "he looks better to me this morning. I was raised on a farm, and I'm very fond of pigs. I used to go to bed at sundown, so I never saw one by lamplight before. Tell you what I'll do, Rufe," I says. "I'll give you ten dollars for that pig."

"I reckon I wouldn't sell this shoat," says he. "If it was any other one I might."

"Why not this one?" I asked, fearful that he might know something.

"Why, because," says he, "it was the grandest achievement of my life. There ain't airy other man that could have done it. If I ever have a fireside and children, I'll sit beside it and tell 'em how their daddy toted off a shoat from a whole circus full of people. And maybe my grandchildren, too. They'll certainly be proud a whole passel. Why," says he, "there was two tents, one openin' into the other. This shoat was on a platform, tied with a little chain. I seen a giant and a lady with a fine chance of bushy white hair in the other tent. I got the shoat and crawled out from under the canvas again without him squeakin' as loud as a mouse. I put him under my coat, and I must have passed a hundred folks before I got out where the streets was dark. I reckon I wouldn't sell that shoat, Jeff. I'd want ma to keep it, so there'd be a witness to what I done."

"The pig won't live long enough," I says "to use as an exhibit in your senile fireside mendacity. Your grandchildren will have to take your word for it. I'll give you one hundred dollars for the animal."

"Rufe looked at me astonished.

"The shoat can't be worth anything like that to you," he says. "What do you want him for?"

"Viewing me casuistically," says I, with a rare smile, "you wouldn't think that I've got an artistic side to my temper. But I have. I'm a collector of pigs. Over in the Wabash Valley I've got a hog ranch with most every specimen on it, from a Merino to a Poland China. This looks like a blood-ed pig to me, Rufe," says I. "I believe it's a genuine Berkshire. That's why I'd like to have it."

"I'd shore like to accommodate you," says he, "but I've got the artistic temperament, too. I don't see why it ain't art when you can steal a shoat better than anybody else can. Shoats is a kind of inspiration and genius with me. Specially this one. I wouldn't take two hundred and fifty for that animal."

"Now, listen," says I, wiping off my forehead. "It's not so much a matter of business with me as it is art; and not so much art as it is philanthropy. Being a connoisseur and disseminator of pigs, I wouldn't feel like I'd done my duty to the world unless I added that Berkshire to my collection. Not intrinsically, but according to the ethics of pigs as friends and coadjutors of mankind. I offer you five hundred dollars for the animal."

"Jeff," says the pork esthete, "it ain't money; it's sentiment with me."

"Seven hundred," says I.

"Make it eight hundred," says Rufe, and I'll crush the sentiment out of my heart."

"I went under my clothes for my money-belt, and counted him out forty twenty-dollar gold certificates.

"I'll just take him into my own room," says I, and lock him up till after breakfast."

"I took the pig by the hind leg. He turned on a squeal like the steam calliope at the circus."

"Let me tote him in for you," says Rufe; and he picks up the beast under one arm, holding his snout with the other hand, and packs him into my room like a sleeping baby."

"After breakfast Rufe, who had a chronic case of haberdashery ever since I got his trousseau, says he believes he will amble down to Misfit's, ky's and look over some royal-purple socks. And then I got as busy as a one-armed man with the nettle-rash pasting on wall-paper. I found an old negro man with an express wagon to hire; and we tied the pig in a sack and drove down to the circus grounds."

"I found George B. Tapley in a little tent with a window flap open. He was a fattish man with an immediate eye, in a black skull-cap, with a four-ounce diamond screwed into the bosom of his red sweater."

"Are you George B. Tapley?" I asks.

"I swear it," says he.

"Well, I've got it," says I.

"Designate," says he. "Are you the guinea pigs for the Asiatic python or the alfalfa for the sacred buffalo?"

"Neither," says I. "I've got Beppo, the educated hog, in a sack in that wagon. I found him rooting up the flowers in my front yard this morning. I'll take the five thousand dollars in large bills, if it's handy."

"George B. hustles out of his tent, and asks me to follow. We went into one of the side-shows. In there was a jet black pig with a pink ribbon around his neck lying on some hay and eating carrots that a man was feeding him."

"Hey, Mac," calls G. B. "Nothing wrong with the world-wide this morning, is there?"

"Him? No," says the man. "He's got an appetite like a chorus girl at 1 A.M."

"How'd you get this pipe?" says Tapley to me. "Eatin' too many pork chops last night?"

"I pulls out the paper and shows him the ad."

"Fake," says he. "Don't know anything about it. You've beheld with your own eyes the marvelous, world-wide porcine wonder of the four-footed kingdom eating with preternatural sagacity his matutinal meal, unstrayed and unstole. Good morning."

"I was beginning to see. I got in the wagon and I told Uncle Ned to drive to the most adjacent office of the nearest alley. There I took out my pig, got the range carefully for the other opening, set his sights, and gave him such a kick that he went out the other end of the alley twenty feet ahead of his squeal."

"Then I paid Uncle Ned his fifty cents, and walked down to the newspaper office. I wanted to hear it in cold syllables. I got the advertising man to his window."

"To decide a bet," says I, "wasn't the man who had this ad. put in last night short and fat, with long black whiskers and a club-foot?"

"He was not," says the man. "He would measure about six feet by four and a half inches, with corn-silk hair, and dressed like the pansies of the conservatory."

"At dinner time I went back to Mrs. Peevy's."

"Shall I keep some soup hot for Mr. Tatum till he comes back?" she asks.

"If you do, ma'am," says I, "you'll more than exhaust for firewood all the coal in the bottom of the earth and all the forests on the outside of it."

"So there, you see," said Jefferson Peters, in conclusion, "how hard it is ever to find a fair-minded and honest business-partner."

"But," I began, with the freedom of long acquaintance, "the rule should work both ways. If you had offered to divide the reward you would not have lost—"

Jeff's look of dignified reproach stopped me.

"That don't involve the same principles at all," said he. "Mine was a legitimate and moral attempt at speculation. Buy low and sell high—don't Wall Street endorse it? Bulls and bears and pigs—what's the difference? Why not bristles as well as horns and fur?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FRUIT PRICES

Kelowna, B.C.,

20th March, 1922.

To The Editor,

The Kelowna Courier.

Dear Sir,

In the endeavour to determine a reason for the poor returns received by the fruit growers for their product of the past season and a solution of prevention for the years to come, let us commence with facts already known to us. We know that we, the growers, have received for our fruit a sum that does not allow of our continuing the business as a lucrative industry, the returns in some cases having been below the cost of production. We also know that the consumer has paid a good price for fruit, a price which does not warrant so small a return to the producers.

The difference between the sum which the consumer has paid and the sum which the grower has received has been absorbed by intermediate agents, engaged in placing the fruit before the consumer and, in my opinion, is too large an amount.

If the consumers are to buy fruit in a quantity sufficiently large to enable us to dispose of our crop, I do not think they can be asked to pay a higher price than they are doing. Therefore, if the consignment system is to continue and if the growers are to obtain a large return, the money must be obtained from the sum now absorbed by the intermediaries. To this end we must first discover exactly how the difference between the

WESTBANK

Mr. Featherstonhaugh, of Kelowna, was a business caller here Monday.

Mr. C. Butt was a passenger to Peachland Friday evening to attend a concert there.

Scoutmaster C. James spent a few hours here on Saturday with the Scouts, who were very glad to see him.

Mr. J. Nichols, an engineer in the service of the C.P.R., is here with his family, and we are glad to hear that he intends to build.

Mrs. Featherstonhaugh arrived here on Friday evening's boat from Kelowna. She attended the dance, and was a week-end visitor with Mrs. Brown.

Major MacDonald and Mr. O. F. D. Norrington, of Kelowna, made a business trip here Monday, in connection with the formation of the new proposed Irrigation District.

The Dramatic Club met at Mrs. Laing's home Saturday evening. Those enthusiasts are preparing an evening's entertainment for the community.

The extra warm weather on Sunday caused the snow to melt so quickly that it washed away our roads in several places. Road Foreman William Ball was out with a gang on Monday, repairing the worst places.

The ladies met at Mrs. Brown's home last Wednesday afternoon and a large crowd was present. They have already a large amount of articles stored away, and they expect to have numerous things made when the time arrives for the bazaar.

Mrs. Pritchard, Principal of the Superior School, has been holding drill in the B.C. Packing House, with a very good attendance. The children are delighted with the exercise, and are also very fond of the music furnished by Mrs. Drought.

The Scouts held their meetings Saturday evening as usual. The Foxes met at Mr. Hardwick's home, and the Eagles at Mr. Drought's. Asst. Scoutmaster B. Gore, who is unable to attend both meetings the same night, has decided to attend with the Eagles one evening and the Foxes the next.

The dance held by the Westbank Dance Club, at the B.C. Packing House, Friday evening, was a total success. A large crowd was present, and with only one musician, the club was able to finish with money ahead. It would be a wise thing for the young men with chocolates if they did not leave their coats exposed to the public.

Mr. Gustavson, from the prairie, is here on business, looking into the prospect of getting water on his land, which is in the proposed district. It is hoped that the district will be formed, and a start made in the early spring, as it is understood that a great many land-owners are anxious to develop their property as soon as water is available.

sum paid by the consumer and received by the grower is absorbed.

If a reduction of these charges is possible, I think it would be on account of one or both of the following conditions: (1) that the intermediate agents are making too great a profit; (2) that the system of placing our fruit before the consumer is too elaborate.

In my opinion the only way, satisfactory to the grower, of disposing of the fruit is for him to sell to a packing firm at a definite price. With the consignment system, the fruit passes through too many hands for him to follow and must lead to dissatisfaction.

Yours truly,

G. E. SEON, Junr.

The Editor,

Kelowna Courier.

Dear Sir,

May I ask the contributor who wrote the advance notice of "The Gondoliers" whether this opera is to be put on without other music than the human voice? The article gives one the impression that this must certainly be the case.

I am, sir,

Yours sincerely,

STANLEY M. GORE.

SCOUTS' AUXILIARY GIVES CONCERT

tra gave a charming version of some old English Morris dances, winning loud applause. Miss Elsie McDonald, who has quickly established herself as a favourite with Kelowna audiences, sang "Mavourneen," which, however, did not suit her rich voice as well as her encore number which captivated the hearers, and they would have recalled her once more. Material of another order was a "jazz" song by Mr. Scrivens, who impersonated a "real lady," with suitable accompaniment by Mr. Kool. "Jazz" had its admirers in the audience, and an encore was demanded and accorded.

Next in order came an address by Rev. Mr. Braden, who said he had been asked by the Ladies' Auxiliary to express their sincere thanks to all who had helped to make the programme a success. Speaking of the Boy Scout movement, he said it represented a force that had done more than anything else to solve the boy problem in Kelowna. One of the professors in the Provincial University had recently stated that there were more boys from the Kelowna district in the University than from any other rural centre in the province and fewer in the industrial schools. If there was one thing else to whom the people owed a debt of undying gratitude, it was Mr. E. C. Weddell, the Scoutmaster. (Loud Applause.) He had not only given eight years to the work but his annual holiday each year had been spent at the Scout camp.

It had become imperative to have a hall for the Scouts, and the campaign for that purpose had been crowned with success. A total of $5,000 had been subscribed, of which $3,500 was already paid and the balance was good. While the lots generously offered by Messrs. Knowles and Ritchie could not be used, owing to the fire limits, a splendid site had been donated by Mr. C. McCarthy and construction would soon be under way. The hall would not be a thing of beauty so much as of utility, in which respect it would be of the greatest possible value. A minimum of $6,000 would be required to erect the building and equip it and $7,000 or more could be used. Many people had not yet been approached for a subscription, but every citizen would be given an opportunity to contribute, and he appealed to the audience to remember the greatness of the work that the hall would accomplish and to give accordingly.

Over 170 boys had passed through the ranks of the local Troop since inception of the movement here, and there was not one of them of whom there was need to be ashamed in after life. With the new hall there were greater possibilities and the Girl Guides movement would also do much for the young girls.

Mr. Braden closed with an appreciative reference to the work which had been accomplished and was being carried on by the Ladies' Auxiliary for the Boy Scouts.

Mrs. J. H. Trenwith sang very sweetly "Little Mother O' Mine," and gave "Good-Bye" in equally fine voice as an encore. The sketch, "School Days," which followed, was a scream throughout, one of the funniest pieces of farical comedy ever staged in Kelowna. The scene represented a school-room, complete with desks and blackboard, and a class of "kids" carried on to the manner born, what with throwing paper pellets, eating candy and apples, chewing gum, surreptitious love-making, "scrapping," and other varieties of juvenile mischief under the stern and reproving eye of Miss Hazel Ritchie, wonderfully made up as a typical "school-ma'am" of former days. The "children" went through lessons of a sort, sang songs, spoke "pieces," did physical drill and put on a programme that was a whole show in itself, and the audience thoroughly enjoyed it throughout. According to the programme, and not allowing for changes in personnel, the "kids" were: Mrs. A. E. Hill, Mrs. McClymont, Misses Ethel Austin, Beatrice Campbell and Jean Kincaid. Messrs. Dan Campbell, Ernie Hill, George S. McKenzie, E. O. MacGinnis and Walter Parker.

Mr. F. Wigglesworth acted most acceptably as accompanist to several of the items of the concert, and the Ladies' Auxiliary wish to express their gratitude to him and to Mr. G. W. Cunningham, who kindly lent the furniture used on the stage, also to Mr. C. M. DeMara, who handled the stage setting and the thunder and lightning effects.

WESEERN CANADA IRRIGATION ASSOCIATION

Preparations Well In Hand For Sixteenth Annual Convention

The Sixteenth Annual Convention of the Western Canada Irrigation Association, which is to be held jointly at Maple Creek, Saskatchewan, and Brooks, Alberta, promises to be one of the best conventions ever held in the West. Though the time of this convention is still four months away, the Executive of the Association has its preparations well in hand, and some of the most prominent irrigation agriculturists in Western Canada and the United States have already intimated that they expect to be present and give addresses. Among them are Dr. Elwood Mead, who, as the head of the State Land Settlement Board in California, has done magnificent work in the colonization of the irrigated areas of that state; Dr. Alfred Atkinson, President of the Montana State College, an effective speaker who has made considerable study of crop management on dry and irrigated land; Mr. Robson Black, of the Canadian Forestry Association; Dean Howes, of the University of Alberta; Mr. J. H. Hanna, General Manager of the Canada Land and Irrigation Company. The Minister of Agriculture in the Dominion Government, the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, has also promised to be present if he can arrange to do so. Another interesting speaker who probably will be present is Mr. I. D. O'Donnell, of Billings, Montana. Mr. O'Donnell is a practical irrigation farmer who has been of considerable assistance in overcoming some of the difficulties that have been experienced with irrigation districts in Montana. He has intimated his desire on several occasions to come to Western Canada and address one of the irrigation conventions here, but unfortunately he has not been enjoying the best of health of late, and this may prevent his being at the convention this year. If he should come, those attending the convention will hear something worth while.

At previous conventions arrangements have usually been made to give visitors an opportunity of visiting some of the areas where irrigation farming is being practiced and of seeing some of the irrigation works. Brooks is especially well situated as a "jumping off" point for this purpose. Besides having in its neighbourhood farms in the various stages of cultivation—farms on which the sod is being broken for the first time this year and farms which are producing such remunerative crops as alfalfa and other seed—it has also some of the most interesting irrigation structures in the world, of which the most important is the now famed Brooks Aqueduct, which carries the water two miles across a valley, going under the railway on the way. The executive of the association and the people of Brooks are now devising plans that will enable the delegates and visitors to the convention to see as much of the district as possible during the two days during which the convention will be held there.

FROM ANOTHER POINT OF VIEW

Issue Taken With Statement Of Returns From 1921 Fruit Crop

Yet another contributor who does not wish his name to appear in print writes us in regard to the article that appeared in last week's issue under the heading, "The 1921 Results From An Orchard." Letters to the Editor, especially when of a controversial or critical character, should comply with our rule that the writer's signature must be published in full and usually not at all. As our correspondent figures out the returns from another point of view, however, we print a portion of his letter. He says:

"I would like your contributor to compare his returns with the statistics given in Circular No. 38, Agricultural Department of B.C., viz., 'Cost of producing apples in the Okanagan and average yields and prices for leading varieties.'"

"The average was taken for 42 orchards in the Valley, 9 of which being in Kelowna district, and the averages were: number of trees per acre, 74; age of trees, 10 years; cost of such land, $1,091.50; cost per acre per year, including interest on investment, at 8 per cent, $226.03. So, if your contributor's orchard was an average of the 42, his 1,382 trees would cover 18.57 acres roughly, and at a cost of $226.03 per acre, his cost of production would be $4,229.55.

"His returns were $2,772.72 at 85½ cents per box, so why does he think $1.00 per box should be satisfactory to the grower? If he had received $1.00 per box this year, his returns would be:

Cost of production	$4,229.55
Returns	3,240.00
Loss	$ 989.55

Why so stingy about personal items for this column? If you know of any little bits of news of interest, please send them in by phone or otherwise, and we shall be duly grateful and our readers appreciative. There is no other way to obtain social items, and the lack of them in this column is because most people are very uncommunicative as to comings and goings and other personal happenings.

Mayor Sutherland returned on Saturday from Ottawa, where he had been as a delegate from the Okanagan in connection with anti-dumping legislation. While waiting for the Hon. Mr. Fielding, Minister of Finance, to return to Ottawa from Washington, Mr. Sutherland took the opportunity to visit his old home in Nova Scotia, where his mother still resides and enjoys a measure of health although 83 years of age.

Our readers are reminded of the concert to be given on Thursday next, March 30th, by the Kelowna Philharmonic Society, a body eminently worthy of public support. Its orchestra numbers twenty-four performers, and those who attended the concert given last Thursday evening by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Boy Scouts Association had a taste of its quality in a couple of excellent numbers. The programme for next Thursday includes five orchestral items, a cello solo and three songs, and should prove a musical feast of pleasing richness and variety.

KELOWNA CREAMERY, LIMITED

SPARE THE MILK AND SPOIL THE CHILD

Importance and Value of the Product of the Dairy Cow

Every family in Canada is vitally concerned in its main food supplies. Among them milk and milk products are as indispensable in the diet of both child and adult as is bread itself. Referring to child nutrition, Dr. A. J. Anyot, Deputy Minister of Health, recently made the statement that "there are many under-nourished or improperly fed children in this country, whose condition, both physical and mental, would be greatly improved by the more liberal use of milk in the diet."

In a pamphlet just issued by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, entitled "Why and How to Use Milk," it is stated that milk contains all the requirements for the growth and repair of the body. Milk contains protein from which to build new cells and repair worn-out tissues. It contains fat and sugar, which serve as a source of heat and energy for muscular activity, and mineral matter, which has a regulatory effect and enters into the composition of the body, especially as regards the bones and teeth. The deficiencies of other foods are counterbalanced by milk in the diet. When milk is served with cereal, with bread, or other food from grains, not only are the nutrients in milk used, but much other protein is conserved for body uses which would otherwise be wasted. Butter, for which there is no real substitute as a beneficial food, is made from cream, and cream is whole milk with a large percentage of that soluble fat without which the normal growth and development of the body or of the mental powers are impossible. All the good of the milk is not taken off with the cream—far from it. It still contains the protein, mineral matter and vitamins necessary to build bone and make blood. Nor is the food value of milk destroyed when it sours. Made into cottage cheese one pound contains as much protein as a pound of meat, and who can deny the deliciousness of sour-milk biscuits and griddle cakes? Butter-milk has a food value equal to that of skim-milk or sour milk; is easily digested and is delightfully refreshing to drink. Condensed milk is useful where fresh milk is not obtainable, but is not suitable as a permanent diet for babies. Evaporated milk will keep indefinitely if sealed, but when uncovered should be used as quickly as fresh milk. If given to children, fresh fruit juice should be added to the diet.

One particularly interesting piece of information in Miss Campbell's pamphlet is a description of the manner in which milk can be pasteurized at home, thus being freed of any possible obnoxious germs, with practically no expense and with only a modicum of trouble. People who regard ice cream as a mere luxury are mistaken; it is a real food. In conclusion it may be stated that forty-nine recipes are given in the bulletin referred to for making delicious dishes, in all of which milk is the principal or most important ingredient.

"No use to," scowling over a line of figures. "What do I want with two silk hats?"

"It's awfully good looking on you," playfully setting it on his head. "You look like Lord Somebody in an English play," viewing him admiringly.

"Here, stop your monkeying! Get busy and don't bother me."

Bringing in her sewing basket, Helen settled by the library table. But even with the scissors in her hand, she hesitated to cut into that lustrous expensive hat.

Why had he bought another when this looked so new? But he wore a high hat so little, the shape went out of style.

Compared to the mercurial changes in feminine millinery, men's hats were most stable. Yet as Warren had had this before they were married, it must be passe now.

Determinedly she thrust her scissors under the band. It was not gross-grain ribbon as on a derby. It was broadcloth to bring out the sheen of the hat.

"It does seem a shame!" her scissors still poised. "I wonder if there isn't someone we could give it to?"

An impatient snort from Warren overcame her reluctance. Ruthlessly, she ripped off the broadcloth band.

"There you can have that to play with!" draping it around Pussy Pur-Mew, who sat on the table gravely watching the work of demolition.

Next, the scissors pried up the edge of the fine silk plush. Firmly pasted over the block, it took half an hour to peel it off.

"Look, dear! I got it all off without tearing it once. See, it's just the shape of a bag. And this white satin isn't a bit soiled," examining the inside of the now denuded hat. "I'm going to use that for the lining."

"Sixty-three, seventy-one, eighty, eighty-seven," Warren, adding aloud, sternly rebuked her interruption.

Ripping out the inner band, its faint leather odour and perforated initials, "W.E.C.," brought back a thrilled memory.

It was the first time he had called to take her to the theatre. In love with him even then, as he waited in the drawing room, she had paused at the hall table to flutter over his hat with its impressive initials. She had even sniffed at the leather band and at the cigar fragrance of his gloves.

THE MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN

HELEN'S ECONOMY COSTS A SILK HAT

With an ever-convenient hair-pin, Helen opened the last number of her favourite home monthly.

Ignoring the insipid pretty-girl cover, she scanned the illustrations of "His Butterfly Wife," the new three-part saccharine serial. Then on to "What Fashion Dictates," demonstrated by two pages of slim hipless figures.

Hastily glancing through "The Home Decorator," "Wholesome and Economical Dishes," and "Easy Desserts for the Young Housewife," Helen turned eagerly to the last department, "Economical Hints for the Home."

The suggestions this month were most alluring. "A New Use for Old Hot Water Bags," "Your Burnt-out Electric Light Bulbs Make Excellent Darning Balls," "Save Your Used Phonograph Needles to Clean Bottles."

It was the last item that interested Helen most:

"Your husband's old silk hat will make a beautiful handbag. Great care must be taken in removing the material. It is pasted over the block and must be pulled off gently without tearing. Just the shape for a bag, it needs only to be lined and mounted."

"Dear, just a moment, do listen to this," reading it aloud.

"Um-um," grunted Warren, without looking up from the bank book he was balancing.

"You bought that new silk hat in London—you'll never wear your old one. Can't I—"

"Go ahead, I don't want it," curtly. "Thought you'd given it away."

"I didn't know anyone to give it to. The elevator boy doesn't need a silk hat. It'll make a wonderful bag! I'll get it done right now."

A rainy evening with Warren working on his books was an ideal time for just such a homey task.

Not daring to disturb him to get down the hat, Helen dragged the step-ladder chair to the hall closet. Even then the top shelf was beyond her reach, but with his cane she poked down the high round box.

Yes, it WOULD make a wonderful bag! Exultantly she held up the gleaming silk hat. That satiny plush was the finest texture.

"Dear, it looks so new—it seems a pity to cut it up," smoothing the glossy surface as she ran into the library.

"No use to," scowling over a line of figures. "What do I want with two silk hats?"

"It's awfully good looking on you," playfully setting it on his head. "You look like Lord Somebody in an English play," viewing him admiringly.

"Here, stop your monkeying! Get busy and don't bother me."

"Sixty-three, seventy-one, eighty, eighty-seven," Warren, adding aloud, sternly rebuked her interruption.

Ripping out the inner band, its faint leather odour and perforated initials, "W.E.C.," brought back a thrilled memory.

It was the first time he had called to take her to the theatre. In love with him even then, as he waited in the drawing room, she had paused at the hall table to flutter over his hat with its impressive initials. She had even sniffed at the leather band and at the cigar fragrance of his gloves.

Why had he bought another when this looked so new? But he wore a high hat so little, the shape went out of style.

Compared to the mercurial changes in feminine millinery, men's hats were most stable. Yet as Warren had had this before they were married, it must be passe now.

The band now ripped out, she gazed at it wistfully. It was such soft, lovely leather—perhaps she could use it for something.

Next came the white satin lining with the gilt-lettered name and crest of the maker. Helen was fascinated by that expensive looking crest. It would add distinctiveness to the lining of her bag.

"I've got it now," exploded Warren. "Had $27 too much. Been over the blamed thing three times and couldn't find it—a check here that I hadn't deducted."

"Now, can you look?" eagerly. "See how wonderfully this is coming out! And that silver top on my old head bag—I think it'll just fit."

"Fine!" in genial, good humour, since he had located his error. "Having the time of your life, eh?"

"Yes, I love to do anything like this. Oh, do look at Pussy Pur-Mew! She's too cunning for words."

Curled up inside the devastated hat, Pussy Pur-Mew gazed blandly out at them awaiting their admiring attention.

The lining finally sewed in, Helen got out the silver top.

A moment's anxious suspense as she measured it. Exactly the right size. The bag was going to be a great success.

With her passion for utilizing old things, Helen was purringly happy. Nothing brought her greater joy than to find a use for something that would otherwise be thrown away.

She had three old pillow cases filled with odds and ends of trimmings, lace and ribbons. Junk, Warren called it. Yet she loved to rummage through them and think how some day she could use this or that.

But to make a handbag out of Warren's old silk hat was so far her supreme achievement; also it suggested a new line of economic possibilities.

His wardrobe had been overlooked as a source of supply for makeovers. Why could not his old derbies be used for something?

But her usual inventiveness failed her. She could think of nothing into which a derby could be converted. The shape was bafflingly inadaptable.

"Look, dear, it's finished," triumphantly. "Didn't I do that quick?"

"Um-um."

"Now DO stop long enough to look at it! Wasn't that a clever idea?"

"Looks all right," giving it a grudging glance.

"You couldn't buy one like it for any price," with glowing elation. "They'd never put that quality of plush in a bag."

"Yep, that's a good stunt. Fine way to use up the old lid," impatient to get back to his work.

"And you're always poking fun at these economy hints in that magazine. You see how practical this was? It more than pays for a year's subscription."

"Huh, bet that's the first sensible thing you ever got out of it. What was that you read the other day—How to Make a Card Case Out of a Sardine Can?"

"You know it wasn't."

"Well, almost as bad." Then with a grin, "Gild Your Husband's Cigar Butts," as he tossed one into the tray, "And Make a Nobby Picture Frame."

"Wasn't I lucky this top just fits?" her enthusiasm ignoring his scoffing humor. "And I love this gold stamp in the lining. Look, dear, 'By Royal Appointment to H.M., the King.'"

"Eh? What's that?" explosively.

"Why, I used the white satin lining and this was in the top," showing him the stamp. "Hunt, Grimm & Co."

"Hunt, Grimm & Co.," shouted Warren. "What the hell have you done?"

Jumping up, he snatched the denuded frame from the table, tumbling out the indignant Pussy Pur-Mew.

"You monomental idiot! You brainless, turnip-headed chump! You—you—in spluttering incoherency, 'Know what you have done?'"

A dread, sick fear engulfing her, Helen gazed at him dumbly.

"That's the NEW hat I bought in London last trip."

"No, no! It CAN'T be!" quaveringly. "It was way on the top shelf."

"Then you put it there," he roared. "I bought this hat you've carved up at Hunt-Grimm's last year," shaking at her the grotesque naked block.

Dashing into his closet, Helen dragged out his leather hat box.

With trembling fingers she unbuckled the straps. The lid thrown back revealed the hat luxuriously embedded in the red velvet lining.

Her throat tightened as she lifted it out. It was the OLD hat! The importer's label and the slightly soiled headband confirmed it.

In some incomprehensible way the hats had been put in the wrong boxes. "One of your damned ideas of economy," thundered Warren. "Want to know what that little stunt will cost? You know what I'll have to pay for a hat like that on Fifth Avenue?"

But Helen had dropped on the floor by the leather case in a huddled, tearful heap.

"What'll you do next—make a sofa pillow out of my dinner coat? Wonder that blooming magazine hasn't told you to use my silk muffler for a dish rag—and save ten cents."

mended that the applications be referred back to the petitioners with the advice that the new residences also make application, when the matter would be considered by the Council.

The report was adopted, and a resolution was passed authorizing the supply of water to Miss E. J. Edgell, Mr. G. H. Kerr and Mrs. Jennie Lloyd, the connection for Mr. Kerr being conditional upon an application being received from Mr. Dayton Williams for a connection from the same pipe line.

By-Law No. 331, granting an option to The Jenkins Co., Ltd., for the purchase of Lots 11 and 12, Block 5, Reg. Plan 462, was reconsidered, finally passed and adopted.

Requests having been received that taxes outstanding for 1921 against portions of church property in town be wiped out, the Mayor invited the City Clerk to make a statement. Mr. Dunn explained that last year the Council had rebated the taxes upon the ground actually covered by church buildings, while the taxes remained on the balance of the lots not so covered. This year, the whole of the lots owned by the churches had been exempted. What was sought was to obtain exemption from the balance of taxes still due for 1921 on the ground not occupied by church edifices.

The Mayor considered the requests quite unwarranted and ungrateful, in view of the generous action taken by the City this year in exempting all of the lots instead of the actual church sites, and he thought the churches concerned should pay the 1921 taxes cheerfully. The money was needed by the City and as much more as possible.

The Mayor's views were shared by the Council, and the arrears of taxes will stand accordingly.

In connection with the subject of taxation, His Worship pointed out that there was a possibility that the money might not flow into the City's coffers so freely as during the past two years, and he therefore asked the aldermen, when preparing their estimates, to keep them as low as possible.

It was intimated by the Mayor that a proposal would be laid before the Council at an early date by Mr. Eric Dart on behalf of a new Tennis Club that was to be formed, with relation to negotiating for a site for courts in the portion of the Park on the Abbott St. frontage, opposite Chinatown. It was desired to lease sufficient ground to permit of the construction of four courts and a site for a club-house, and it has been suggested that in return for the lease the Tennis Club would provide and maintain an extra court for public use free of charge. The Club would beautify the leased ground by planting trees and would put up a nice building, and the use of that portion of the Park for such a purpose would add rather than detract from its attractiveness, and would undoubtedly bring many people to the town.

The aldermen favoured the scheme. Ald. Shepherd thought that, as the City had done so much for the Athletic Association by providing a recreation park, it was only right that tennis should also get recognition. Ald. Knowles welcomed the prospect of something being done with the vacant ground opposite Chinatown, which had been somewhat of a puzzle to the Park Board to utilize.

Ald. Barrat reported upon the present status of the reservoir site problem. He said Supt. Blakeborough was very keen to obtain an ideal elevation, which was 226 feet higher than town, but there were only two sites available at that height and they were likely to prove very costly so far as construction was concerned. One of them was in clay, which Mr. Grote Stirling, their consulting engineer, refused to endorse, and the other would involve an outlay for excavation and one wall of $23,000. Mr. Stirling favoured the "Plateau" site, which would give 1,000,000 gallons capacity at a cost of $15,180 for excavation and cement work or about $18,000 complete. This site would give unlimited room for expansion when required. The elevation was 263 feet, giving a pressure of 114 lbs.

Ald. Knowles expressed himself as opposed to a high-pressure system, owing to the extensive mileage of wooden pipe.

The Mayor said that Mr. Stirling was not afraid of the effects of a pressure of 114 lbs., and mentioned that Kamloops had a head of 300 feet.

Ald. Barrat added that Mr. Stirling had Mr. Groves examine the "Plateau" site, and Mr. Groves had approved of it.

As it is necessary that an early determination of the reservoir site be arrived at, it was decided to take up the matter at a special committee meeting today.

Ald. Meikle submitted a plan of a portion of Dilworth Mountain extending to 46 acres, which the Golf Club

KEEPING ONE'S OWN COUNSEL

"Never-complain that your confidence has been betrayed. The fault is yours for pouring unsafe talk into a leaky mind. You do not blame a leaky pail for leaking. Blame yourself for not knowing it leaked."

This quotation from a modern magazine is, I believe, just about right—as right as the ancient Talmudic admonition, "Thy friend has a friend; and thy friend's friend has a friend; be discreet."

Both, you see, put the responsibility on yourself. It's of no use cavilling at the weaknesses of your friends. A broken confidence begins with yourself and there's the place to prevent it.

One's friends may usually be classified something after this fashion:—those who, under sufficient pressure will tell anything they know, justifying themselves, perhaps, by the excellent character of the person to whom they tell it; those who will reveal a confidence only to somebody who they are convinced, never had known and never will know the people concerned; those who forget that they promised not to tell; those who tell everything but the names; those who, once they have given a promise, will never tell; those who have sense enough not to tell, even though no promise be exacted, and last of all the one friend over whose tongue you can exercise absolute control—yourself. This doesn't take in, of course, the host of talkers of various sorts who aren't your friends at all.

The person of the first class, you may say, is no true friend; but I don't think that is necessarily so. She is, very likely, deeply interested in the affairs of her friends, sympathetic, a tempting confidant and with every intention of keeping your secret. But, while it is fresh in her mind, along comes another friend, not yours, but hers—with a tale of woe or wonder almost equal to your own. Just to show how these sad and strange things do befall the best people, your friend says: "Why there's Mrs. M., wait till I tell you the experience she had—it's a dead secret, of course, and you mustn't tell a soul"—and so forth. Your friend's friend, not being your friend, has no restraining sense of loyalty, so the next time your little secret illustrates a point in her conversation she uses it.

As for the second friend, she needs this advice: Don't tell anybody anything because she doesn't know the people involved. She may meet them to-morrow.

The woman who forgets, that she is offering to the City at a price of $1,600, payable in two instalments within a year's time, without interest. This was the only supply of good shale within convenient hauling distance of the city, said Mr. Meikle. The material was excellent for work on side streets upon which the traffic would not be heavy, and it did not cut tires like the flinty shale obtained from elsewhere. He reckoned that 21 loads per day could be hauled from the Mountain to town per truck. Purchase of the tract would be a good business proposition for the City as, besides enough shale to do for 150 years, there was enough wood on the Mountain to pay for it.

The Mayor considered the price was high, in view of what was paid by the Golf Club for the whole area purchased by it, but if the terms were made over a term of four years without interest, he thought purchase might be entertained.

It was decided to give the proposition further consideration at the next meeting.

In order to make a start with necessary money by-laws, the Council resolved to meet again on Monday, March 27th, a week earlier than usual.

FOREST EXHIBITS CAR TO TOUR PROVINCE

A Forest Protection School On Wheels

One of the most picturesque and effective of educational enterprises will soon be at work in British Columbia with the arrival about April 3rd of the "Forest Exhibits Car" of the Canadian Forestry Association. This car has been called "A Forest Protection School on Wheels," and is made up of a series of graphic exhibits driving home the common-sense facts of forest fire prevention in such an interesting way as to impress not only adults but the youngest school child.

During the past month this car has been completely made over by a staff of workmen and artists so as to adapt its visual instruction to British Columbia conditions. A large working model showing an actual rainfall on deforested, contrasted with well-forested, hillsides, will show the on-looker exactly the consequences of forest destruction on the watersheds as regards agricultural fertility. An electrical illusion depicting the transformation of timber stands into areas of waste is also provided. Models of lookout towers and pulp and paper towns and methods of conservative and wasteful logging are shown. The recreational side of forest protection is by no means neglected, so that the car interior with its hundreds of electric lights and coloured transparencies presents a scene of real beauty.

Daily lectures will be given by members of the British Columbia Forest Service. The first part of the itinerary will cover Vancouver Island, and later the Cranbrook, Nelson and Vernon districts will be visited.

promised is the most exasperating person and taxes friendship to the utmost. She repeats your secret in your very ears and to the last person in the world to whom you would tell it. Remonstrance brings contrition but contrition soon forgotten, and if you give her a chance she'll do the same thing again.

The friend who tells everything she knows except names, may be a very harmful person—the more so that she is an interesting talker and always gets an audience. The audience listens open-mouthed and mentally supplies at least one or two of the missing names. By the time it has listened to one or two more of her own ilk and her own set, it may have all the names in the cast and so the cat is out of the bag.

The woman whose secret-keeping stops with never telling what she has promised not to tell is a dependable person—but with a lack. You cannot, dare not, talk straight out to her because she isn't sensitive to what is a familiar outspoken expression of thought from friend to friend, and what is, on the contrary, an opinion that you might reveal to anybody. Since one cannot punctuate any real communion of spirit with, "Don't tell this," and "That's a secret," nor yet fully enjoy a companionship in which the need of such warnings is felt, even though not expressed, this dull and unimaginative friend must take a second place in your affections.

"The friend with whom you may 'Think aloud' with no fear or misunderstanding and no remotest dream of having the wrong thing repeated, the friend who knows as well as you what is just talk, and for anybody, and what concerns your family, your friends or your own heart deeply and intimately, and is for her alone, is the friend of friends. I fancy there aren't more than one or two such friendships in a lifetime; I believe they cannot exist unless you are the same kind of friend in return, and I know that they cannot be too highly prized.

And in your friends one of these friends is you. Which one, I wonder, don't you?

WINFIELD (WOODS LAKE)

(Received too late for last issue)

The Rev. J. A. Dow, of Rutland, will administer the Holy Sacrament in connection with the Presbyterian service on Sunday, March 26th.

Mr. and Mrs. Edric Johnson entertained a number of friends last Friday evening when progressive bridge was played. Mrs. Randall won the lady's prize and Mr. Coates the gentleman's. A very good time was enjoyed by everybody.

Coughs and colds are quite the fashion these days, and no wonder with the damp atmosphere, slush and wet we are travelling in just now.

Mr. Lidstone has started operations on the road in good time and has gravelled a stretch of road which is always bad in the spring. Work will begin in earnest in April.

Mr. Claggett has built a small house on his property for his daughter, Mrs. Wilson, who has been living in Vernon recently.

Mr. Richards has had a verandah added to his bungalow, which is greatly improved in appearance. Mr. Richards is laid up again with lumbago, we are sorry to hear.

The sound of a spray pump is rather an oddity this weather; let's hope the blister mites get well-dosed with lime-sulphur. This pest is becoming very troublesome in this district and will have to be dealt with systematically for if not, much good fruit is going to be ruined. Unfortunately there is a decided shortage of spraying outfits and it will be very difficult for those who do not possess one to get their orchards sprayed. The only real solution is for each grower to buy a small power machine himself, but who can do so on the returns of this year?

Mrs. M. J. B. Wilson, who has spent the winter in Victoria returned on Tuesday by the mail stage.

THEATRICAL SOCIETY

"The Gondoliers"

(Contributed)

We omitted mentioning in our last week's report on the progress being made with the opera "The Gondoliers" that the orchestration is expected to arrive this week, and we hope the Orchestra will bear this in mind and try to get in as many rehearsals with the troupe as possible.

The whole production is under the leadership of Mrs. G. D. Cameron, and we must say that lady deserves all the credit and praise for its success so far, and at no time have we had a more painstaking and efficient conductor. The Society wishes also to thank in the most hearty way Mrs. Pritchard for her untiring and voluntary efforts at the piano, which is without doubt the most arduous work of the production and without a player of her ability a great deal of extra work to the conductor would be entailed.

DELEGATE REPORTS ON MISSION TO OTTAWA

President Adams said that at first glance the scheme seemed rather foolish but, on second thoughts, it appeared to have some value.

Mr. Haug thought the time set was too early to see the province at its best.

Mr. Adams explained that the time suggested was the period during which invitations should be sent out; the visitors could come at any designated later time.

Mr. Heron thought it should not be treated so superciliously and moved that the resolution be endorsed and forwarded to the Vancouver Publicity Bureau, for transmission to the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council. Mr. Rees seconded.

On a show of hands being taken, Mr. Heron's motion prevailed.

The Kelowna Bar Association forwarded a copy of a letter addressed to the Attorney-General, fully stating the urgent need for the establishment of a Supreme and County Court Registry at Kelowna and for increased Court-room accommodation, and asked for the Board's endorsement and support of the request. The letter to Hon. Mr. Manson pointed out that the time involved in getting a return of documents sent to the Vernon Registry, because of transportation arrangements, is two or three days, which entirely prohibited satisfactory action in matters of urgency. In agricultural communities such as this, where chattels change hands or are pledged frequently, the necessary County Court searches and registrations were many, and the expense of reference to Vernon in such cases was frequently quite out of proportion to the magnitude of the transaction. With regard to Court-room accommodation, it was suggested that the Oddfellows Hall might be rented, as it was eminently suitable.

Invited to speak on the subject by the chairman, Messrs. T. G. Norris, E. C. Weddell, R. G. Ritchie and H. V. Craig, all members of the local bar, supported the plea of their Association, dwelling on the importance of a local Registry to the business interests of Kelowna and as a convenience to the public generally.

The President stated that the Executive Council had already forwarded a resolution to the Attorney-General, urging establishment of a Registry, but it was the feeling of the meeting that good would be accomplished by also endorsing the Bar Association's letter and resolution, which was therefore done, on motion of Messrs. Rees and Sutherland.

In speaking to his resolution, Mr. Rees welcomed the presence that evening of so many "legal lights," and he hoped they would continue to attend the meetings of the Board.

President Adams reported that the Executive Council, at a meeting held on March 17th, had endorsed three of the requests of the St. Catherine's Chamber of Commerce in regard to certain improvements in postal services, as follows: (1) reciprocal special delivery service at least between carrier offices; (2) direct relations between postmasters in connection with registry tracers and general communications; (3) increased maximum for parcel post.

Anti-Dumping Delegation

Called upon by the chairman for his report on his visit to Ottawa, as a member of the delegation in regard to maintenance of the anti-dumping legislation, Mayor Sutherland was greeted with applause as he rose.

Before taking up his subject proper, the Mayor said he had noticed reference was made earlier in the meeting to a lack of further information in regard to the question of the level of Okanagan Lake. Since he returned from Ottawa, he had a long-distance call from Mr. Doncaster, the Dominion engineer at Nelson, who informed him that things were running far from smoothly, as the C.P.R. had sent in a protest against lowering the water level to the point contemplated and the people on Okanagan River below Penticton were making a claim upon the government for damages. Mr. Doncaster seemed to be much disturbed over the trend of affairs and was going to Vancouver to consult Mr. Brydon-Jack, the Dominion engineer there. Meantime, he advised that all the communities on the lake take steps to have their representatives meet at some point to decide upon a course of action to protect their interests.

The Mayor said he was not in a position to say much about the anti-dumping matter except that he had spent the money with which they had sent him to Ottawa, and had done it faithfully and well. (Laughter.) For the information of those not cognizant of the facts he recited the circumstances under which the agitation in the Okanagan was initiated for retention of anti-dumping legislation as essential to the prosperity of the fruit industry, the details of which are already familiar to our readers and need not be repeated here. Apart from the Ottawa Board of Trade, he said the movement for repeal of the legislation was fostered in Vancouver by some wholesale fruit men, who imported strawberries from the American side last year in an effort to bring down the local price. The anti-dumping clause was invoked and later the wholesalers had to pay $480 to the government, which was the primary cause of their hostility to the clause. They had induced the Vancouver Board of Trade to endorse the Ottawa resolution a day previous to the date upon which the Board agreed to receive a deputation from the Okanagan upon the question, and the resolution had been wired to a delegation from the Vancouver Board that was submitting other matters to the Federal Government. When the Okanagan delegation met the Vancouver Board, Mr. Brencley, of F. R. Stewart & Co., wholesale fruit dealers, fearing that the action of the Board might be reversed, hurried off to Ottawa, arming himself with a copy of the resolution. On arrival there he allied himself with Mr. Savage, of Plunkett & Savage, Calgary, and represented himself as a delegate from the Vancouver Board of Trade and the Vancouver wholesalers, and for several days sought diligently to air his hostility to the anti-dumping clause before the ministry, in which he was not very successful.

After hearing the Okanagan delegation, the Vancouver Board wired their delegates at Ottawa instructing them to take no action on the resolution that had been forwarded to them. When the speaker and Mr. Cossitt, of Vernon, arrived at Ottawa and found that Mr. Brencley was claiming to represent the Vancouver Board in an attitude which they had thus practically abandoned, they wired Vancouver asking that Board to repudiate Mr. Brencley, which was promptly done, much to that gentleman's disgust.

While he could not say that anything definite had been accomplished, the Mayor thought that good had been done by sending the deputation to Ottawa so as to present the case of the fruit industry, in view of the efforts of Messrs. Brencley and Savage to have the anti-dumping clause abrogated. The Okanagan men had no difficulty in meeting the members of the Cabinet, through the very kind offices of Senator Bostock. Mr. Cossitt, an Ontario man, met a number of old friends in the House of Commons, and these friendships proved useful. A lot of lobbying had been done and a number of the Progressive members from the prairies were interviewed to learn their attitude on the question. They were found to be by no means in favour of free trade in all things, as their constituencies were feeling the pinch of the competition of New Zealand butter and of imported eggs, and they actually wanted higher duties upon these commodities. (Laughter.) It was pointed out to them that the interests of farmers and fruit growers should be identical, that they should not oppose each other, and their support was therefore asked for protection of the fruit industry against dumping.

It was a surprise to the government that delegations should have found it necessary to go to Ottawa in regard to the question, as action upon it had not been contemplated so far by the Cabinet. One of the most interesting men met at Ottawa was Hon. Mr. Fielding, author of the original anti-dumping clause. He had always considered such legislation from the viewpoint of the manufacturer, and it gave him an entirely new angle of the subject when he learned that dumping also operated to the hurt of the fruit industry.

From their conversation with the Ministers, the Okanagan delegates reached the conclusion that, with the exception of Mr. Fielding, they were all high tariff men, and there was no danger of repeal of the anti-dumping legislation, so far as he could see, unless severe pressure was brought to bear by the Progressives.

The Mayor was again applauded at the close of his interesting remarks, and, on motion of Messrs. Weddell and Norris, a hearty vote of thanks was awarded to him for his services at Ottawa.

Mr. Rees spoke with appreciation of the interest shown by Senator Bostock in matters concerning the Okanagan and his readiness on this and former occasions to be of assistance to the Board, and on his motion, seconded by Mayor Sutherland, a vote of thanks was passed to the Senator, and will be conveyed to him by letter.

President Adams said it looked as though, from Mr. Doncaster's conversation with the Mayor, the suspicion that the C.P.R. was at the bottom of the opposition to lowering the lake level was confirmed. As soon as Mr. Doncaster was heard from, steps would be taken to arrange a meeting of representatives of the various communities directly interested in the question.

The proceedings thereafter terminated.

ANNUAL MEETING OF KELOWNA G.W.V.A.

Touching on the condition of the financial affairs, the President explained that the efficiency of the club could not be jeopardized by any drastic curtailment of its operating expense and that, unless the membership fee was raised, it would be necessary to devise some special means of augmenting the club's revenue. However, he personally was not in favour of any increase in fees and knew that the majority of members were of a like opinion, so he hoped that before the meeting was over some one would suggest some ways and means.

He mentioned the most generous support that had always been accorded the club by the Women's Auxiliary and thanked the Executive Committee and all officers for their zeal and diligent work during the year.

The result of the ballot for officers was then announced: The President, Comrade A. Graves, and 1st Vice-President Comrade S. Gray were elected by acclamation, Comrade E. V. Burke was re-elected 2nd Vice-President, and the executive committee elected was Comrades C. R. Gowen, R. Haug, G. Matthews, T. A. Martin, C. A. Fletcher, J. Symonds, G. W. Thomlinson, T. C. Black, J. T. Fisher. The result was received with applause and the meeting then tackled one or two problems for the coming year.

Comrade Burke suggested a Booster Club to augment the funds. He pointed out that if every member agreed to assess himself 25c per month it would help swell the revenue and also give an impetus to members to endeavour to bring in new members, as by this little act of obligation one would realize the need. The meeting heartily concurred and many members signed the Boosters' Club list.

Several members spoke on the advisability of changing the meeting nights from Saturday to a mid-week night or holding one of the semi-monthly meetings on a mid-week night. This was for the benefit of members working in stores, and in order to try and give them the opportunity of attending business meetings it was decided to hold one of the weekly meetings on the first Wednesday evening of each month, and that a special social programme be combined with the business session of that meeting.

Many other suggestions for the welfare of the club were discussed and will be brought up in more detailed form at future meetings.

Votes of thanks to all who worked for the good of the club and a unanimous expression of confidence and assistance to the new officers in their work during the coming year brought the meeting to an adjournment.
